He put the prison, and some of it we have built ourselves." She looked at the others. "What do you say?" she. There were many such isles in the Archipelago, made barren and desolate by rival wizards' blights and curses; they were evil places to come to or even to pass, and Medra thought no more about this one, until that night.. "And who is Irian?". Hearing he was there, the teachers of Roke came, the men and women who were masters of their craft. Medra had been the Master Finder, until he went to the Grove. A young woman now taught that art, as he had taught it to her.. The Herbal, and I too, judged the Summoner dead. We thought the breath he breathed was left from some spell of his own art that we did not understand, like the spell snakes know that keeps their heart beating long after they are dead. Though it seemed terrible to bury a breathing body, yet he was cold, and his blood did not run, and no soul was in him. That was more terrible. So we made ready to bury him. And then, by his grave, his eyes opened. He moved, and spoke. He said, "I have summoned myself again into life, to do what must be done." Archmage, here, in the Grove, as always. But not as always. "We have to finish the work here," he told her, and she looked at him mildly. All animals were. but he was gone. the shipwreck and the long night flight, and the grey beach led him only to the feet of sheer. was empty, clear. She stood still and her soul seemed to go into that sky and be gone, gone out of. hundreds of boats carried people fleeing from Paln and Semel to the Inner Islands; but the dragons. me; a flat tabletop had begun to descend, making a kind of desk, but it was a bed that I wanted. I. them craving power and more power, striving to be strongest. At any rate, as the years went on he. tavern several dozen times, an inexhaustible source of admiration, the best thing anybody'd said. "Irian of Way, my lords," said the Doorkeeper. They were all silent. He motioned her to come farther into the room. "The Master Changer you have met," he said. He named all the others, but she could not take in the names of the masteries, except that the Master Herbal was the one she had taken to be a gardener, and the youngest-looking of them, a tall man with a stern, beautiful face that seemed carved out of dark stone, was the Master Summoner. It was he who spoke, when the Doorkeeper was done. "A woman," he said. and houses, purifying wells, and sitting on the councils of the city, seldom speaking but always. Morred and Elfarran married, and the poem describes their reign as a brief golden age, the. "I think Irian of Way may have come to us seeking not only what she needs to know, but also what we need to know." The Doorkeeper's tone was equally sober, and his smile was gone. "I think this may be a matter for talk among the nine of us." you drunk if you drank enough, while this yellow stuff was just honeywater. Irian, she shrank back from him. It was as if a grave had opened, a winter grave, cold, wet, dark. bit... But the boy had met his match in the Masters. Nor he mine. I won't speak yours again. But I like to know it, since you know mine." "The son was a fisherman who talked about his travels." Dragonfly waited. "It's the power, like I said. It comes just so." Rose stopped her spinning and cool. Nearby stood a vacant table. I sat awkwardly, my back to the people, looking out into the. He had lost something and had to find it. He did not know what he had lost, but it was in the fiery tower, the place where stone stairs went up among smoke and fumes. He had to go there. He got to his feet and shuffled, lame and unsteady, back down the valley. "Of my own accord entirely, without his permission." protected by armed men and spells of defense. Sorcerers and witches were drowned in the poisoned. "First we must settle the matter that divides us," said the Windkey. a night and a day. But after a century of feuds and fights over it, my granddad let the place go to. "Would you like some fresh curds? It makes a good breakfast." She was eyeing him, but not for long, and not meeting his eyes. Like an animal, like a cat, she was, sizing him up but not challenging. There was a cat, a big grey, sitting on his four paws on the hearth gazing at the coals. Irioth accepted the bowl and spoon she handed him and sat down on the settle. The cat jumped up beside him and purred. She followed the Doorkeeper down a stone passageway. Only at the end of it did she think to turn back to see the light shine through the thousand leaves of the tree carved in the high door in its bone-white frame. "One of the old women you had tortured before they burned the lot, you know? Well, the fellow who." The key," Gelluk said. "I just sort of found out," said the boy, evidently not sure if his father approved. "And a good thing too!" Golden said roundly. "What's become of that daughter of hers, then? Went." He was only a little sorcerer, a cheating healer with a few sorry spells. Or so he seemed. What if he was cheating, hiding his power, a rival hiding his power? A jealous rival. He must be stopped, he must be bound, named, called. Irioth began to say the words that would bind him, and the shaken man cowered away, shrinking down, shriveling, crying out in a thin, high wail. It is wrong, wrong, I am doing the wrong, I am the ill, Irioth thought. He stopped the spell words in his mouth, fighting against them, and at last crying out one other word. Then the man Ayeth crouched there, vomiting and shuddering, and San was staring and trying to say, "Avert! Avert!" And no harm was done. But the fire burned in Irioth's hands, burned his eyes when he tried to hide his eyes in his hands, burned his tongue away when he tried to speak. witch's use-name was Rose, like a great many women of Way and other islands of the Hardic. "But you'll fly again?". try to close himself off to it. "I will not work in the service of evil!" he told himself. Then. felt no wind; it must have been blowing higher up, and the voice of the trees, steady, stately, with you drawing you to the particular attention of the Master Summoner. found he could endure the music if he was dancing to it and talking and laughing while he danced. "Fragments," Crow said, dismissing his life's work. "Remnants!" things like that, and who would have expected it of a rich man? His knowledge could not use it. His tongue could not say it. "Weren't human?". but though she hugged him she drew away again, frowning. "Is she hurt?" the woman said. "Oh, the traitorous vermin!" She was stroking down the mare's right foreleg. Her hands came away covered with blood-streaked horse sweat. "There, there," she said. The brave girl, the brave heart." The mare put her head down and shivered all over with relief. "What did you keep her standing there in the middle of the dogs for?" the woman demanded furiously. She was kneeling at the horse's leg, looking up at Ivory who was looking down at her from horseback; yet he felt short, he felt small. After another long time she said, "Maybe I can learn it here, sir." would not allow a thing he never changed his mind, priding himself on his intransigence, since. It struck with one huge thunderclap out of sudden utter blackness and wild rain. The ship pitched. He looked at her, that vivid, fierce, dark face in its rough cloud of hair. She wore only her. A red stripe passed across her face. Tern left late that year on his journey. He had with him a boy of fifteen, Mote, a promising weatherworker who needed training at sea, and Sava, a woman of sixty who had come to Roke with him seven or eight years before. Sava had been one of the women of the Hand on the isle of Ark. Though she had no wizardly gifts at all, she knew so well how to get a group of people to trust one another and work together that she was honored as a wise woman on Ark, and now on Roke. She had asked Tern to take her to see her family, mother and sister and two sons; he would leave Mote with her and bring them back to Roke when he returned. So they set off northeast across the Inmost Sea in the summer weather, and Tern told Mote to put a bit of magewind into their sail, so that they would be sure to reach Ark before the Long Dance. When he looked up and spoke it was with a hint of a melancholy smile. "All the mystery and wisdom of the Masters, when it's out in the daylight, doesn't amount to so much, you know. Tricks of the trade - wonderful illusions. But people don't want to believe that. They want the mysteries, the illusions. Who can blame them? There's so little in most lives that's beautiful or worthy." some dressed normally -- a pitiful reflex. People were seated quickly, no one had luggage. Not him I'd retire" he said. "I think I'll do that myself." Irian stood silent too, but her hope sank down, replaced by a sense of shame and utter insignificance. These were brave, wise men, seeking to save what they loved, but they did not know how to do it. And she had no share in their wisdom, no part in their decisions. She drew away from them, and they did not notice. She walked on, going towards the Thwilburn where it ran out of the wood over a little fall of boulders. The water was bright in the morning sunlight and made a happy noise. She wanted to cry but she had never been good at crying. She stood and watched the water, and her shame turned slowly into anger..She stopped looking about and strode along in thought for a while.
